

Freightex expands with new Midlands office

Building on its success, Freightex has opened an office in Tipton, West Midlands. Mark Silvester from logistics firm Rhenus has been recruited to manage the operation.

Primarily targeting Midlands-based companies, it will also support clients at Freightex's London and Dover offices as demand increases.

"We have had a record number of freight movements recently, with sales this year up 40% on the same period in 2007 and expect this pace to continue to grow," said Tim Phillips, CEO Freightex.

"Sadly, the freight industry is going through a tough time at the moment with mounting financial and environmental pressure on hauliers. However this really emphasises the importance for them to utilise their assets properly, making sure all their back loads are filled."

The new Tipton office has three staff at the moment with plans to double this number by the end of the year.
