

NEW CEO FOR FREIGHTEX

The full service freight exchange, Freightex, has recruited Tim Phillips as chief executive.

Tim has 20 years of logistics experience and most recently was managing director of VMEX, the web-based car transportation exchange, part of Autologic plc.

Before this, Tim worked for BMW Group in both the UK and Germany, where he was General Manager Worldwide Car Distribution controlling the contract purchasing and movements of all BMW Group product.

He has a degree in mechanical engineering and is married with two daughters.

"My logistics and management experience closely match the needs of Freightex" he explained. "It is a great company and we're on track to take it to the next level in terms of customer service and quality."

Freightex has recently changed its name from X4freight, and it will continue to match unallocated freight with empty vehicles, helping companies optimise road freight and vehicle capacity across Europe.

- ends -

About FreightEx

FreightEx is a logistics management company dedicated to finding the most efficient road transport solutions for its clients. It is particularly active in the UK, Benelux, France, Spain and Germany with transactions being completed across its European network every day between over 1500 consignors and carriers.

Date of Issue: 30.6.08

Issued on behalf of: FreightEx
Port of Dover
UK

+44 (0) 1304 240 532

Issued by:

Amanda Jackson
Tigerfish PR
Sandy Lane
Brindle, Lancashire. PR6 8NJ
UK

If you require any further information regarding this press release, please contact:
Amanda Jackson at Tigerfish PR:

Tel: +44 1254 851 680
Mobile: +44 7881 62 11 43
Fax: +44 8700 529937
Email: amanda@tigerfishpr.co.uk